REVIEW OF LABOR LEGISLATION OF 1918.

BY LINDLEY D. CLARK.

INTRODUCTION.

In 1918 there were 23 legislative bodies in session in the United States, of which 11 were in regular session and 12 in special session, besides the meeting of the Federal Congress. In every State except two, laws were enacted affecting the relations or status of employers and employees. The present bulletin presents the results of this legislation, supplementing the basic compilation of such material, Bulletin No. 148. This bulletin undertook to present all legislation in its field in force at the end of the year 1913, and annual bulletins have been issued since that date covering the succeeding years. These are numbered 166, 186, 213, and 244. One important subject of labor legislation has been omitted from these bulletins—that of workmen's compensation. The bulk and special interest of this legislation has warranted its separate presentation, which appears in bulletins Nos. 203 and 243. Each of these series carries a cumulative index, so that the entire material on any given subject may be referred to by the use of the index in the latest number issued.

In 1918, as in 1917, there is a considerable showing of the effects of the economic conditions resulting from the war. Fortunately the attempted waiver of labor laws, somewhat in evidence in 1917, was not pursued in any effective way in 1918, the undesirability of lowering standards of health and safety based on experience that have been reached through years of effort having been emphasized sufficiently to check any movement in this direction. States which had not previously created councils of defense did so in 1918, for the express purpose of securing the coordination of all the forces of the State, industrial and other, for the achievement of the aims involved in the war. Some extension was given to the idea of compulsory labor service, while other laws were enacted looking toward the replacement in industry of those who had been withdrawn through the exigencies of military or naval service. The impression created by the necessities of the wounded soldiers and sailors, disabled for their accustomed vocations, gave rise to action by the Federal Government looking towards the retraining of wounded men for such occupations as they might appear to be qualified for; and this idea received countenance in one State both for its citizens in military service and for those injured in industry.

To the war also may be accredited in some measure legislation regarding convict labor, the importance of making use of the entire productive force of the Nation having influenced a few legislative bodies to make provision for the employment of convicts to this end. This class of labor also continued to receive attention along the same lines as in the recent past, the desirability of eliminating the contract system being increasingly recognized.

Notwithstanding the war, the amount of legislation on the subject of woman and child labor is almost as great as usual, though the laws are chiefly amendatory. One exception is the minimum wage law of the District of Columbia. Vocational education in accordance with the provisions of the act of the Federal Government for cooperation received attention in several legislatures which had not had opportunity to take earlier action. A summary of these various laws and others not here noted follows.

CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT.

ENFORCEMENT.

Despite the narrow constitutional basis which can be found for laws seeking the enforcement of the labor contract, attempts continue to be made in this field. The legislature of South Carolina repealed its existing law on the subject of fraudulent breach of contract where advances have been made, and enacted a law having the same end in view, but omitting provisions making certain facts prima facie evidence of an offense under the law (No. 469). The law is also made applicable only in cases where the advances to the workman are made at the time of the commencement of service under the contract. A Virginia statute on this subject (ch. 179) provides for punishment as for larceny where a workman procures advances with intent to injure or defraud and fraudulently refuses to perform the work contracted for or to refund the advances made. It may be noted in passing that a law of this type was recently declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of Louisiana (State v. Oliva, 80 So. 195).

INTERFERENCE WITH EMPLOYMENT.

The laws against criminal syndicalism enacted in 1917 by two States seem to have met the approval of a group of legislatures in that general section of our country, laws of this type having been enacted in Arizona (ch. 13), Montana (ch. 7), Nebraska (ch. 9), North Dakota (ch. 12), and South Dakota (ch. 38). The definition of the term seems to be taken from the early enactments and signifies that doctrine which advocates crime, sabotage, violence, force, arson, the destruction of property, or other terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political ends. The term "sabotage" is used alone in some of the laws, and is defined as malicious destruction or injury of property, plants, equipment, etc., either industrial or agricultural. Teaching the doctrine of syndicalism and assembling to teach it, as well as engaging in the reprobated practices, are offenses. Owners of halls permitting such assemblies therein are also subject to punishment, while the officers or agents of any organization or association aiding or causing the forbidden acts are charged with liability in some cases.

The Federal Government enacted a war measure in this field penalizing the injury or destruction, or the attempted injury or destruction, of war materials, utilities, etc., while the United States was at war (Pub. No. 135).

Two acts of the New York Legislature (chs. 490, 491) amend, respectively, the antimonopoly and conspiracy laws of the State by exempting agricultural cooperative associations from the strictures imposed by the statutes named.

Classed here because they authorize public activities in competition with or exclusion of private business are certain laws authorizing the conduct of business by municipalities. Two laws of Louisiana treat of this subject, the first (No. 128) authorizing and empowering municipalities to own, construct, lease, and operate public utilities involving electrical lighting and power; the second (Ex. sess. No. 22) relates to the ownership, maintenance, etc., of gas-pipe lines and of gas wells. A Mississippi statute (ch. 192) corresponds closely to the first noted act of the Louisiana Legislature; while a second law of this State (ch. 198) authorizes municipalities to conduct coal and wood yards for the supply of the inhabitants during the period of the war and for one year thereafter. A New Jersey statute (ch. 53) is of broader scope, including the supply of food as well as of fuel. No profits are to be made, but expenses must be covered by the prices charged. The South Dakota Legislature did not feel itself free to take conclusive action in this field, but proposed four amendments to the constitution (chs. 32, 33, 34, and 35) authorizing the State to engage in four classes of undertakings—the manufacture, distribution, and sale of cement and cement products; the production and distribution of electric light and power; the mining and sale of coal; and works of internal improvement.

It may be of interest to note in connection with the foregoing legislation that a law of this type has been on the statute books of Maine since 1903, apparently without its constitutionality having been tested until 1917, when the law was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States (Jones v. City of Portland, 38 Sup. Ct. 112; 245 U. S. 217).

COMPULSORY WORK LAWS.

As noted in the introduction, the example set by two States in 1917 was followed by several in 1918. These States are Delaware (ch. —), Georgia (p. 277), Kentucky (ch. 178), Louisiana (No. 139), Massachusetts (ch. 286), Montana (order of State council of defense), New Jersey (ch. 55), New York (ch. 625), Rhode Island (ch. 1661), and South Dakota (ch. 62). All these laws were enacted as war emergency legislation, and in many cases require a proclamation of the governor to bring them into operation. They apply usually to all male residents between fixed ages, the minimum being 16 years in Georgia and Kentucky, 17 in Louisiana, and 18 in Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island. The obligation continues up to the age of 50 in Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island, 55 in Delaware, Georgia, and Louisiana, and 60 in Kentucky. In Montana and South Dakota the law applies to adults without distinction of sex or age. Thirty-six hours of labor per week are required in Kentucky, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island; 48 hours in Louisiana; 5 days in Montana and South Dakota; and 5½ days in Georgia. No period is fixed in Delaware. Persons temporarily unemployed by reason of labor disputes, students attending school, and persons preparing for trade or industrial employment are exempt in most States. Possession of property is no defense and reports must be made to official agencies if employment is not procurable. The provisions in Montana and South Dakota on this subject are embodied in orders of the council of defense under authority conferred by law.

Not properly coming under the heading of the above paragraph, but placed here rather by way of contrast is the law of Arizona (ch. 4) prohibiting the employment of slackers or deserters from military service.

SUNDRY PROVISIONS.

Various laws bearing more or less directly upon the formation or carrying out of the contract of employment are to be found, one of which is a Massachusetts statute (ch. 251) amending the law of the State requiring notice to be given of any existing strike when an employer advertises for labor. The amendment relates to the method of determining when a strike is at an end, and requires notice of hearings to be sent to both parties interested. Another law of this State (ch. 257, sec. 402) repeals chapter 155 of the Revised Laws, relating to apprenticeship, leaving the State without any law on the subject.

A New York statute (ch. 265) strikes a new note in authorizing the adoption and registration by an employer of an employee's badge, and makes it a misdemeanor, after the prescribed formalities have been complied with, for any person to wear or display such a badge without authority or to use it to gain entrance to the employer's place of business.

A law of Maryland (ch. 425) forbids superintendents, managers, gardeners, etc., buying materials or supplies for public parks, athletic grounds, clubs, country estates, and the like, from receiving any bonus or gift from dealers.

The naval appropriation act for 1919 (Pub. No. 182) authorizes the commandeering of industrial establishments engaged in the production of ships and war material or any part of such establishment. If the establishment is not taken over, orders of the United States must be given precedence over other work. This power expires six months after peace is declared. This act as well as the fortifications bill (No. 189) and the Army bill (No. 193), contains the provisions that have appeared in these laws for several years on the subject of the use of stop watches in timing of work and the giving of bonuses. Another war act passed by the New York Legislature (ch. 585) authorized contracts for public works to be annulled where prewar prices are found to be unfair to the contractor by reason of increased costs. Work under such contracts may be terminated, entirely suspended, or completed under new arrangements, as the board in charge may find advisable.

EXAMINATION AND LICENSING OF WORKMEN.

The Maryland statutes relating to the licensing of chauffeurs are supplemented by a provision authorizing the issuing of an instruction license good for 30 days on the payment of a fee of $1, the learner to be accompanied by an instructor while operating his car (ch. 85). The minimum age of a licensee is advanced from 16 to 18 years. An emergency provision was made by the New York Legislature (ch. 238) by which licensed chauffeurs engaged in military or naval service of the United States may have expired licenses renewed without examination within three months after the termination of their services on compliance with the other conditions of the law.

Massachusetts statutes under this head relate to electricians (ch. 257, secs. 342, 343), amending the existing law as it applies to firms or corporations engaged in electrical work. If a firm is licensed a license must be held by a member of the firm, and if a corporation, by an officer of the corporation; the provision exempting from examination in cases where the applicant has been in business for five years prior to the date of the application for license was stricken out. A second statute (ch. 213) is, like the New York statute noted above, a war provision. It authorizes the renewal of a master or journeyman electrician's license without examination within four months of the discharge from military or naval service of the United States but on the payment of the usual fee.

Under a law of Maryland, moving-picture-machine operators in Baltimore, Md., must be 21 years of age, must pass an examination before a local board and show a knowledge of the machine operated, and must have had six months' experience under a licensed operator (ch. 195). The fee for a license is $10, with a $5 annual renewal fee.

The law of New Jersey relating to stationary engineers and firemen was amended (ch. 213) so as to require licenses of attendants of all steam boilers of more than 15 pounds pressure, and to increase the salary of inspectors. In this connection may be noted an act of the Congress of the United States (No. 147), which adds certificated life-boat men to the list of required persons forming the crew and the roster of officers. The act also specifies the minimum number of licensed deck officers for various kinds of vessels.

WAGES.

AMOUNT.

The amount of wages to be paid employees in the Government Printing Office is directly legislated upon by Congress in an act (No. 191) fixing 60 cents and 65 cents per hour, respectively, as the amount to be paid certain classes of employees in that office. This also is a war emergency measure, in force during the term of the war and for six months thereafter. In Kentucky (ch. 23) the rate of wages for labor on public roads is fixed at the rate locally prevailing for such labor, not less than $1 nor more than $3 per day, and for skilled labor, foremen, etc., not more than $5, as the fiscal court may determine.

Laws having an indirect effect on the compensation of employees are one of Georgia (p. 273) and one of Massachusetts (ch. 149), relating to the giving and receiving of tips. The laws differ widely in their nature however, the Georgia statute prohibiting the receiving of tips by employees of hotels, common carriers, sleeping-car companies, restaurants, or barber shops, or any other employees.

Employers must not knowingly permit employees to receive such gratuities, and it is likewise made an offense for any person to give them. The Massachusetts law, on the other hand, protects the recipient of gratuities for the checking of clothing in his ownership of such gifts, and forbids the employer to take them either directly or indirectly.

Other laws which relate to direct or indirect reduction of earnings are a law of Louisiana (No. 55) which provides that where a State board or commission or institution requires its employees to give bonds, the premium for such bonds must be paid by the employing party making such requirements, and one of Massachusetts applicable to private employees (ch. 192), forbidding deductions from wages on account of tardiness in an amount exceeding the wage equivalent for the actual time lost.

TIME OF PAYMENT.

The laws under this heading are amendatory only, the law of Louisiana (No. 255) fixing a minimum fine of $25 for violation of the semi-monthly payment law of the State, no minimum having been prescribed in the original enactment. The Massachusetts law requiring a weekly pay day was amended (ch. 87) by adding clubs in cities to the list of employers who must observe this statute; while that of Virginia was amended (ch. 389) by adding railroad and steamship offices to the list of establishments that must make semimonthly payments to their employees, and by striking out the proviso which exempted companies engaged in mining and in the manufacture of coke.

ASSIGNMENTS.

The legislatures of Maryland (ch. 88) and Virginia (ch. 402) enacted laws regulating the assignments of wages and the conduct of the business of wage brokerage by the adoption of the uniform small loan law. The requirements for records, the furnishing of papers, license and bond, the fixing of the rate of interest chargeable at  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent per month, the limitation of the assignment to 10 per cent of the earnings, the requirements that where the borrower is married, the spouse shall sign, and that the employer shall be given notice of the assignment, are among the safeguards to these laws. The Kentucky statute on this subject is amended (ch. 36) by striking out a proviso which validated assignments simply on three days' notice to the employer, thus requiring his consent to the assignment in all cases.

The Georgia tax law (p. 43) is hardly a regulation of the business of loan agents, but discriminates between loan agents generally and wage brokers by taxing the first $20 per annum and the second $100.

PROTECTION OF WAGES.

New aspects of mechanics' lien laws are developed as new subject matter appears. Thus the legislatures of Kentucky (ch. 75) and Maryland (ch. 403) apparently found it necessary to make specific provision in case of repair or supplies for motor vehicles. A New York statute (ch. 366) authorizes the retention of a sufficient portion of the property handled by a drayman to safeguard payment for material and labor furnished and for any money advanced in connection with the work done. Amendments to the Massachusetts statutes (ch. 257, sec. 444, and ch. 265) relate to procedure only; while the law of Mississippi is amended (ch. 128) by providing for pro rata payments where the sum recovered is not sufficient to pay all claims, and by forbidding assignments by contractors or master workmen either of the contract or of the proceeds thereof, to the detriment or prejudice of subcontractors, laborers, materialmen, or the owners of the property involved.

Two methods of protecting wages of employees on public works appear. A New Jersey statute (ch. 280) gives a lien on the money applied or to be applied to any public undertaking, while the fund is in the control of the municipality, to the full value of all claims for labor or material. Applicants filing claims within 60 days after the acceptance of the work may enforce such claims within 60 days after the filing, and the municipality may make payments on ex parte proceedings unless the contractor appears.

More common is the requirement that contractors on public works shall give bond to the State or municipality interested to guarantee the payment of obligations assumed by the contractor for labor and materials. The New Jersey Legislature adopted a law of this type (ch. 75), similar enactments being made also by the legislatures of Louisiana (No. 224), Maryland (ch. 127) and Mississippi (ch. 217). These laws are quite similar in their form, and authorize claimants to proceed in their own behalf where the contractor is dilatory in procuring a settlement.

HOURS OF LABOR.

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT.

The laws enacted under this head last year were of limited application, one being an act of the Kentucky Legislature (ch. 23) fixing the hours of labor on public roads at eight hours of actual service. Eight hours is the standard workday for public employees in the State of Massachusetts, but the legislature last year made an exemption in the case of operators of farm machinery purchased by the State and operated by its employees under contract with farm owners (ch. 90). Congress took action with regard to watchmen, messengers, and laborers in first and second class post offices and railway postal clerks at terminal and transfer offices. The eight hours of daily labor required of these employees must be performed in 10 consecutive hours; overtime may be worked in cases of emergency, with pro rata excess payments. The act (No. 185) is the Postal Service act for the year, and further provides for compensatory time for railway postal clerks working on Sundays or holidays—a provision already applicable for clerks and carriers in first and second class post offices.

PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT.

The only act under this heading, except those that will be noted in connection with the laws governing the employment of women and children, is one of the Federal Congress relating to seamen (No. 147). This act requires at least six hours off duty for officers before taking charge of the deck watch at the time of sailing, and limits the time on duty to 9 hours in 24 while the ship is in port, and 12 in 24 while at sea, exceptions being made for cases of emergency.

HOLIDAYS AND REST DAYS.

The question of Sunday labor was taken up by the Legislature of Louisiana (No. 146), forbidding the operation of barber shops on Sunday; and by that of Massachusetts (chs. 53 and 134), both acts somewhat relaxing the existing law. The first act permits trappers to remove game from their traps on Sunday, but they may not reset or bait them; while the second permits soldiers and sailors to engage in baseball and football games on Sundays during the period of the war if no fee is charged.

The Legislature of Porto Rico undertook in 1917 to establish a weekly day of rest, but by a typographical error failed to accomplish its purpose. This error is corrected by an act (No. 3) of the legislature of 1918.

By virtue of an extra session of the legislature, late in the year, Florida. (ch. 7754) was enabled to be the first State of the Union to declare November 11, the date of the signing of the armistice, a legal holiday, to be known as Liberty Day, to be observed each year as a day of rejoicing "with the free people of the earth."

October 12, Columbus Day, was added to the list of legal holidays to be observed in Louisiana (No. 167).

HYGIENE AND SAFETY.

FACTORIES.

The most important piece of legislation coming under this head is an act of the Legislature of Texas (ch. 58), this being the first enactment on the subject of factory inspection in the State with the exception of fire-escape laws. The act is devoted to sanitation rather than safety, and contains provisions with regard to temperature, humidity, air space, ventilation, cleanliness, water-closets, the protection of the morals of female employees, etc. Doors are to open outwards and handrails and lights are to be provided on stairways. No provisions are made for guarding dangerous machinery, nor are there the usual safety requirements found in factory and inspection laws. Enforcement is in the hands of the commissioner of labor statistics and his inspectors. A Virginia statute (ch. 260) requires the installation of hoods, pipes, and exhaust devices for grinding and polishing wheels in factories. Excepted from the operation of the law are the following cases: In establishments having less than five wheels; where the wheel is used only occasionally for grinding tools; where water is applied to the wheel while in use.

A detail is added by a statute of Rhode Island (ch. 1632) which forbids the use of suction shuttles in textile mills, and the health of the workers of the State is further cared for by amending (ch. 1616) the existing law as to the supply of drinking water, the requirement being made more explicit; a prohibition is added against the use of common drinking cups and common towels. The penalty for violation is also made direct, instead of upon complaint by the board of health or the town council. In Virginia also (ch. 313) the use of common drinking cups is forbidden in factories and stores, as well as in public places generally. Health and comfort are alike served in a provision added to the factory regulations of Massachusetts by an act (ch. 110) requiring employers to furnish suitable and sanitary facilities for warming food if the employees desire such conveniences. The Legislature of Porto Rico fixed the maximum weight that might be carried by workmen by an act of 1917, but the legislature last year (No. 6) set forward to January 1, 1920, the date when the law should come into effect.

The subject of safety in case of fire was considered by two legislatures, a Louisiana statute (No. 276) describing in detail the location and construction of fire escapes required to be erected in factories, the enforcement of the law being intrusted to the State labor commissioner; while in New York (ch. 627) sundry amendments to the existing law relate to exits required in proportion to the floor area, the location of stairways and fire escapes, the observance of fire drills, the use of signal systems, etc. These provisions have regard to the installation of sprinkler systems, the act being drawn with the apparent purpose of favoring such installation. Requirements as to cleanliness of workrooms and factory buildings are also made.

A Massachusetts statute relates to the inspection of steam boilers, the act (ch. 257, sec. 344) requiring steam-boiler rules to be approved by the governor's council, as well as by the governor personally, before they shall have the effect of law.

MINE REGULATIONS.

The only State taking action under this head last year was Kentucky. The first act (ch. 25) establishes a department of mines, making the existing inspector the head of the department, and advances his salary from $1,800 to $3,000 per annum. This officer must give his entire time to the service and is to be aided by three newly added assistant inspectors at annual salaries of $1,800. The coal fields of the State are to be divided into mine-rescue areas, and $4,500 is appropriated for the purchase of rescue apparatus. The second statute (ch. 113) is of less general importance and merely amends the existing law so as to permit the making of copies of mine maps without the consent of the owner or operator of the mine on affidavit of adjacent owners that they believe that their property is being encroached upon.

RAILROADS.

Only minor enactments appear under this heading, one being an act of the New York Legislature (ch. 649), which requires that locomotive engines shall have vestibuled cabs; while an act of the Federal Congress (No. 176) increases the salaries of inspectors of locomotive boilers, the chief inspector receiving $5,000 instead of $4,000, and assistants $4,000 instead of $3,000. The salaries of district inspectors are increased from $1,800 to $3,000.

The Legislature of South Carolina (No. 475) requires adequate heating of cars by all electric street railway companies, instead of only those companies doing business in cities having a population of between 25,000 and 50,000 as the law of 1914 provided. Another act of this legislature (No. 394) applies to interurban railways, and requires cars and vestibules to be heated on lines not over 50 miles in length.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

The most important act under this head is one enacted by Congress (No. 215) for the District of Columbia, establishing a minimum-wage system for women and for minors under 18. The law is applicable to all occupations with the exception of domestic service and is administered by a board of three members representative of employers, employees, and the public. No salary is to be paid these members for their services as such, but a secretary at a salary of $2,500 is provided for. The board has the power to make investigations under oath for the purpose of ascertaining rates of wages paid, and if found inadequate for the protection of health and morals, it may call a conference in which employers and employees shall be equally represented. This conference is to fix an adequate wage, either time or piece or both as the case may require, and must provide for both workers and apprentices, also fixing the time of apprenticeship. Special licenses may be granted for substandard workers. The rate fixed is compulsory and can not be waived by agreement. The act contains the usual provisions found in such laws for the protection of employees testifying before the board or conference.

Affecting both women and children is an act of the Louisiana Legislature (No. 126) creating a legislative commission to investigate conditions of the employment of women and children. This commission has the power to administer oaths, and is to complete its investigations and make a report to the legislature of 1920.

A number of laws relate only to the employment of children and are concerned chiefly with the nature of the evidence required for the issue of work permits. Such are an act of the Kentucky Legislature (ch. 102), one of Maryland (ch. 495), and one of New York (ch. 628). The Kentucky act makes the possession of a certificate by an employer a defense against prosecution for unlawful employment if he is acting in good faith. The Maryland statute fixes 14 years as the age of children eligible for employment in canning and packing establishments, instead of 12 years as previously. The same age limit is fixed for vacation permits in the State. The New York law adds new provisions as to summer employment in mercantile establishments; children must have attained the age of 14 years and attended school 130 days in the previous 12 months before being eligible for employment.

Acts of the New Jersey Legislature (chs. 204, 232) make additions to the law of the State on the subject, the first act making offending corporations liable for violations of the child-labor law, as well as the officers and agents thereof; agents of firms are also made liable as well as members. Mercantile establishments are defined as any place where a person is employed for wages, other than a factory, workshop, mill, mine, quarry or in agriculture. The second statute requires officers in charge of records to make searches and furnish transcripts for employment certificates, free of charge. A Virginia statute (ch. 204) adds canneries, theaters, and places of amusement to the list of establishments in which children may not be employed under the age of 14 years; while 16 years is fixed as a minimum age for employment in mines and quarries, instead of 14. Night work is defined as work between 7 p. m. and 6 a. m., instead of 9 p. m. and 7 a. m. Girls under 18 years of age may not be employed as messengers nor girls under the age of 21 for messenger work at night.

The matter of street trades was considered in Massachusetts (ch. 257, secs. 263, 264) and Wisconsin (ch. 12). In Massachusetts 18 instead of 16 years is fixed as the age under which girls must get permits from the State authorities before engaging in such trades, while another amendment extends the penal provisions to cover all classes of offenders. In Wisconsin the age is advanced from 16 to 17 years, while new sections prescribe general regulations as to the nature of employments, which must not be injurious, but in no case may boys under 12 or girls under 18 engage in street trades. Classification as injurious or otherwise is to be made by the State industrial commission for cities other than those of the first class.

A compulsory school-attendance law was enacted by the Mississippi Legislature (ch. 258), requiring 60 days' attendance for children between the ages of 7 to 14 years, but they may be excused if their labor is needed for self-support or for the support of their parents. This law is not enforceable in any county or school district unless adopted by it.

Doubtless a new impetus has been given to the subject of educating illiterates or those not familiar with the English language by the conditions that have developed in connection with the enrollment for war service. Thus in Arizona (ch. 10) evening schools are to be provided for in any school district in which there are 15 or more persons over 16 years of age who do not read or write or speak English and who desire to attend such a school. The subjects taught are to include the English language and American ideals and an understanding of American institutions. A New York statute (ch. 409) provides for the establishment of evening schools with terms of varying lengths in cities of the first, second, and third classes, and other cities and school districts, if 20 or more minors between the ages of 16 and 21 are required by law to attend school or if 20 or more persons over 16 years of age desire such schools. The terms range from 75 nights to the full length of the school term in the various localities. Another act (ch. 415) requires the attendance of minors between 16 and 21 years of age who have not completed the fifth grade of school, unless they are physically or mentally unfit. An employer may maintain a shop school for the benefit of his employees under the supervision of the school authorities. A Wisconsin statute (ch. 2) also provides for attendance at evening or vocational schools of illiterates over the age of 17 years, instead of 14 as under an earlier law; such attendance must amount to at least four hours per week.

The remaining laws under this head relate to the employment of women, acts of Louisiana (No. 158) and Massachusetts (ch. 147) relating to their employment as operators of elevators. The first simply requires seats to be furnished for the use of such operators, while the second limits the hours of service to the number permitted by law for women and minors in the manufacturing, mercantile, etc., establishments in which they are employed.

A New York statute (ch. 434) amends the law relating to the employment of women in messenger service, forbidding employment to those under 21 years of age and limiting such service to 6 days or 54 hours per week, and prohibiting work between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m. The laws governing mercantile establishments as to time for meals and toilet facilities are applicable to this service.

The Virginia Legislature enacted a new law relative to the employment of women (ch. 214), adopting a 10-hour standard already in force under its earlier law covering both women and children. The act enumerates factories, workshops, laundries, and mercantile and manufacturing establishments, but excepts from its operation bookkeepers, stenographers, cashiers, and office assistants. Voluntary overtime work may be permitted in cases of emergency in tobacco prizeries in towns and cities of less than 30,000 population, this provision expiring February 1, 1920. Another act (ch. 414) directs that where overtime is thus voluntarily worked in these tobacco establishments it shall be paid for at a rate of time and a half.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICES.

The New York Free Employment Office is directed (ch. 356) to establish additional service with particular regard to the needs of the Negro population, and $5,000 is appropriated for this purpose. Congress appropriated $250,000 as a revolving fund to be used in the transportation of workers to places of employment, this amount to be available to June 30, 1918 (Pub. No. 109).

Private employment offices were the subject of legislation in Louisiana (No. 145), a new law on the subject requiring applicants for license to conduct such business to furnish certificates of good character and to pay a license fee of $500 per annum. However, if the applicant is regularly licensed to do business only in an office, and solicits trade only by writing, telegraph, or telephone, the fee is restricted to $25 per annum. The act does not apply to the procuring of agricultural labor in the State. A discrimination similar to that shown above appears in the tax law of Georgia (p. 43), which fixes as the occupation tax on employment agents the annual sum of $25, while for emigrant agents—i. e., agents procuring workers to go outside the State—the tax is $1,000 for each county in which business is done.

The New Jersey Legislature enacted a new law on this subject (ch. 227), repealing generally conflicting statutes. A graduated license fee is prescribed, with the usual requirements that the applicant shall be of good character and shall furnish bond to observe the provisions of the law. Registers for employees and for employers are to be open for official inspection, and where applicants are furnished for domestic and fiduciary employment references must be investigated. Schedules of fees must be filed and may not be changed without notice; dividing fees with employers is forbidden. No service may be rendered except on orders, and a full return of the fee must be made if no employment is secured. Soliciting workmen to leave employment is forbidden, and no placement of children under 16 is permitted. The law is to be enforced by the commissioner of labor of the State. Mentioned in this connection because of its relation with the supply of labor is a resolution of the Legislature of Louisiana (act No. 97) requesting the President and Congress to suspend the Federal immigration laws for the period of the war so as to admit a supply of agricultural labor.

BUREAUS OF LABOR.

The items under this head are chiefly of secondary importance. The Louisiana statute (No. 232) increases the annual salary of the commissioner of labor and industrial statistics from $2,000 to $2,400. In Massachusetts (ch. 225) members of the board of conciliation and arbitration receive $3,000 per annum instead of $2,500; and in New York (ch. 595) the salary of the third deputy commissioner in charge of the bureau of mediation and arbitration was advanced from $5,000 to $6,000; the salary of the counsel for the industrial commission is increased from $6,000 to $7,000. Members of the industrial council of this State are henceforth to receive $10 per day for each meeting attended, instead of rendering their services gratis (ch. 355). They will continue to receive their expenses as heretofore. Assistant factory inspectors of Rhode Island are also benefited (ch. 1676) by an advance in salary from $1,500 to $1,800.

A new bureau was created in the Department of Labor of New Jersey under the title "Bureau of migrant welfare" (ch. 235). There is to be a chief of the bureau and an office force, the bureau being charged with the duty of investigating the conditions of migrant workers and of endeavoring to procure for them proper housing and suitable employment. Reorganization of the Department of Labor of New York is permitted under an act (ch. 456) authorizing the commission to create such bureaus or divisions as it shall deem necessary, instead of a fixed organization comprising five divisions as under the earlier law. These bureaus are to perform such duties as are assigned to them, collect such statistics as may be directed, etc., the net result being a much more flexible organization than before.

The Massachusetts Legislature provides for five additional inspectors under the board of labor and industries to serve for one year, in view of the current increased industrial activity (ch. 276). A resolve of this legislature (ch. 73) directs the supervisor of administration of the State to make an investigation of the State board of labor and industries as to its methods of work, desirable reorganization, etc.

In New Jersey (ch. 17) the commissioner of labor is authorized to charge fees ranging from one to five dollars for passing upon and approving plans and specifications required by law to be submitted to him; also for certificates of approval of work done or alterations made in factories according to his recommendations, the sums collected to be turned into the State treasury.

The industrial emergencies developed by the war were reflected in a very great extension of activities of the United States Department of Labor. This was recognized in an act (No. 181) providing for various lines of activity, either newly undertaken or greatly enlarged, including the placement of labor, the standardization of wages, the adjustment of labor disputes, the standardization of working conditions in war industries, the employment of women, and the training and dilution of workers.

STATE COUNCILS OF DEFENSE.

Springing out of the war and the industrial and social conditions caused by it was the creation in practically all States of the Union of organizations known usually as "councils of defense." Several of these were noted in the Review of Labor Legislation of 1917, though the laws creating them were not as a rule reproduced, since they do not contain definite provisions of labor legislation. However, these councils are charged with the function of coordinating all the activities of the State and the development of its resources of whatever kind, to the end of making an efficient contribution to the State and national powers in connection with the conduct of the war. In default of legislation, in Alabama, whose legislature meets only quadrennially, such an organization was effected by voluntary action, funds for necessary expenses being contributed from private sources. The councils are made up in some cases of members of the State government and in others by persons appointed by the governor, the South Carolina statute naming a list of persons who should serve, to which additions should be made on recommendation of the State Federation of Labor. No salaries are paid members of these councils, but expenses are provided for, and a fund is furnished for the carrying out of their plans. The council of Delaware was charged with the duty of establishing a compulsory work law, while that of Montana took similar action. In Arizona (ch. 7) $26,000 was appropriated. In Kentucky (ch. 9) $50,000 was set aside for two years' work. In Montana (ch. 1) $25,000 was put at the disposal of the council and a war defense fund of $500,000 was also provided (ch. 21), which might be loaned for the increase of food production. In New Jersey (ch. 169) the chief executive officer of each municipality and commissioners of commission-governed municipalities constituted the council. In North Dakota (ch. 5), the legislature set aside $15,000 as expenses for the year, while in South Dakota (ch. 61) the amount was $20,000. The amount provided in South Carolina (No. 595) was $25,000. The activities of these councils are to terminate with the expiration of the war or within a fixed period thereafter.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

A single State took action on the subject of mothers' pensions in 1918, the Virginia Legislature (ch. 80) making provision for widows having children under the age of 16 years whom they are unable to support. Payments are to be made from local funds not in excess of $12 per month for one child, $18 for two, and $4 additional for each other child. To obtain the benefits the applicant must have resided three years in the State and two years in the city or county.

RETIREMENT FUNDS.

The laws of Massachusetts providing pensions for State, county, and municipal employees are amended (ch. 257, secs. 101-136) by sundry changes in the details of administration. It is also directed that unpaid sums due deceased members of the pension fund shall go to their estate or to the persons entitled thereto. The assignment of payments under the act is limited by the provisions of the act. A resolve of this legislature (ch. 70) appropriates $5,000 to promote insurance against sickness and disability and the purchase of old-age annuities under the provisions of the State laws.

A New Jersey statute (ch. 164) provides for retirement at half pay of employees of counties in the State after 25 years of service on reaching the age of 79. A commission is also provided for (J. Res. No. 3) to investigate the subject of pensions and retirement funds for employees of municipalities, counties, and the State, including teachers. Hearings are to be held and witnesses may be subpoenaed. Findings and recommendations are to be submitted either to the present or a future session of the legislature. In New York also (ch. 414) a commission, consisting of the superintendent of insurance and six other members to be appointed, to investigate the matter of the retirement of public employees was provided for, a report, with recommendations, to be made by February 1, 1919. The sum of $5,000 was appropriated for the expense of this commission.

The first provision of the Federal Government for a retirement system for civil employees was enacted last year (No. 174), employees in the Lighthouse Service being the subject of the legislation. Retirement is optional at the age of 65, after 30 years of service, and compulsory at the age of 70. The annual payment is to equal one-fortieth of the average annual pay for the last five years of service for each year of active service, but not over thirty-fortieths of such pay will be allowed.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY.

As already stated, the subject of accident relief is chiefly provided for by compensation laws which are treated of in a separate series of bulletins. A single State took action last year on the subject of employers' liability, the Kentucky Legislature (ch. 52) enacting the doctrine of comparative negligence in the case of damage suits by railroad employees. However, if an injury was contributed to by the act of the carrier in violating a statute, the contributory negligence of the injured person is not to be considered, nor is he to be regarded as having assumed the risk.

Under this head may also be noted an amendment to the Louisiana statute on the subject of recovery for injuries causing death, the amendment (No. 159) substituting the words "surviving spouse" for the word "widow" in designating who may legally sue for damages, so as to give the right of action without regard to sex.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE.

The legislatures of Massachusetts (ch. 112) and of New York (ch. 192) enacted practically identical provisions governing what is known as group insurance. The term is defined as meaning insurance of 50 or more employees of a single employer either with or without medical examination, covering part or all of the working force of the employer. The act prescribes a minimum number that may be insured under various conditions. Forms of policies are to be approved and certain prescribed provisions must be contained in them. The proceeds of such insurance are to be exempt from legal process.

LABOR DISPUTES.

Apart from the amendment to the Massachusetts law (ch. 251) relating to notice of strikes in advertisements for labor, noted on a previous page, the one piece of legislation coming under this head is in the form of a resolution passed by Congress (No. 37) returning to Theodore Roosevelt the money which he had received in 1906 as a part of the Nobel peace prize, and granted by him as a fund to establish a foundation for the promotion of industrial peace. The failure of this foundation to function, and the desire to make the money available for needs arising out of war conditions in devastated countries of Europe led to a request for the return of the money, and this action terminated the plan proposed by the former President.

COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS.

Laws creating cooperative associations have only a slight labor aspect, but are noted because of the provision made in them for cooperative production. A Kentucky statute (ch. 159) permits three or more persons to organize for the carrying on of agricultural work, dairying, merchandising, mining, manufacturing, or mechanical employment. Only one vote is permitted to a shareholder regardless of the amount of stock held. The Massachusetts law is amended (ch. 257, sec. 362) by forbidding the use of the term "cooperative" in the title of any corporation unless its net earnings are distributed in accordance with the provisions of the law governing such corporations.

CIVIL RIGHTS OF EMPLOYEES.

The New York law requiring that employees shall be allowed time to vote is amended (ch. 32) by making the law applicable to all elections instead of only to general elections.

The remaining laws under this head relate to absentee voting. These laws will be enumerated only, inasmuch as they do not present any specific labor aspect but are generally inclusive with the exception of the Montana statute (ch. 18), which applies only to absentees in military and naval service or in war work with the Red Cross or similar activities. The Kentucky statute (ch. 37) relates to absent registered voters, while that of Mississippi (ch. 133) provides for the registration of absentees. In South Dakota (ch. 45) there is an amendment as to the method of handling ballots, and another act (ch. 46) relating to the soldier vote only. The New York Legislature (p. 2085) proposed an amendment to the constitution of the State authorizing the legislature to provide by general law for qualified voters voting when absent from their voting places.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

The offer of the Federal Government to cooperate with the States in the matter of vocational education was accepted by four States whose legislature met last year for the first time since the enactment of the Federal statute. These are Kentucky (ch. 7), Louisiana (No. 52), Maryland (ch. 72), and Virginia (ch. 73). The legislature of Rhode Island also accepted the provision (ch. 1622). The State board of education is to form the cooperating board in each instance, but in Kentucky some additions to the board are to be made. The matter of the apportionment of the State funds is left to the board except in Kentucky and Virginia, where the legislature makes specific provisions. The Legislature of Porto Rico (Con. Res. No. 1) asked Congress to extend to that island the benefits of the Vocational Education Act.

The vocational education of young workers in Massachusetts received attention in view of the conditions due to the war (ch. 206). The limitation on students attending evening classes was waived for the term of the war and one year thereafter, so as to permit study in lines of work not connected with the student's employment; the maximum age of 25 years was also waived.

The action taken by the Federal Government for the vocational rehabilitation of soldiers and sailors injured in the war (No. 178) influenced the Massachusetts Legislature (ch. 230) to make similar provisions specifically for its own soldiers and sailors. The Federal statute directs the Federal Board for Vocational Education to furnish suitable industrial training for wounded men to enable them, if possible, to become self-supporting, and authorizes the withholding, from men willfully refusing to follow the directions of the board, of any part or all of the monthly compensation due not subject to compulsory allotment. The Massachusetts law provides for the establishment of a division of training and instruction by the State board of education, and authorizes the governor to transfer any State hospital, school, or workshop to such division for the term of the war and two years thereafter. Cooperation with the Federal Government is contemplated, and the sum of $10,000 set apart for the work. Massachusetts also took similar action in behalf of workmen injured in industry (ch. 231), the industrial accident board being directed to establish a division of training and instruction for the rehabilitation of injured workmen in cooperation with the United States Government and the State board of education.

CONVICT LABOR.

An act of the Louisiana Legislature (No. 235) permits the employment of convicts on levee work. The general manager of the State penitentiary is to receive the offer of such work at the minimum bid made by private contractors, and is to have charge of such work as is undertaken by him under such arrangements. Another act (No. 210) repeals act No. 26, of 1912, which prohibited the employment of convicts outside of prison walls or camps or away from the penal farms of the State. In Maryland (ch. 306) State convicts may be employed in the building or maintenance of roads or bridges or on any work in stone quarries to procure road material. Another act (ch. 354) confers all powers of the management of convicts on the board of prison control created in 1916. This board is charged with the duty of establishing a labor system to supersede the contract system "as soon as expedient." Convicts may be employed on State works, and such employment is to be sought as will return a profit, a portion of which may go to the convict or to some person designated by him.

The Massachusetts Legislature continued its policy of the use of convicts for the improvement and cultivation of waste land, county commissioners being authorized either to purchase or lease lands for the purpose or to arrange with private owners to improve waste, unused, or agricultural lands. They may also contract with the highway commissioners for work on the public roads (ch. 159). A similar purpose appears in an act of the Legislature of Mississippi (ch. 154) authorizing city, town, and village authorities to employ convicts on county farms or county roads.

A law of broader scope was enacted by the Legislature of New Jersey (ch. 147, Art. VII), which directs that all convicts shall do productive work and receive such compensation as the State board may determine. No contract may be made for the labor of convicts or for the product or profit of the same. Goods made are to be sold to the State and other public bodies and institutions, the surplus to be disposed of in open market, so as not to compete unfairly with free labor. Such goods are to be marked so as to designate that they are prison made. Convicts may be employed to do public work or to work for the United States, but may not be employed to break a strike.

An act of the Florida Legislature of 1917 authorized the leasing of Negro male convicts not needed for work on the State prison farm. This was amended in 1918 (ch. 7744) by extending its provisions to other male convicts, without regard to race.

The South Dakota Legislature (ch. 26) increased its revolving fund for the purchase of materials for the manufacture of binding twine by the addition of $225,000 thereto.

In Virginia the subject of labor on highways was considered in two acts, the first (ch. 9) relating to employment on the State highway system and in quarries, gravel pits, and plants necessary for conduct of the work, and the second (ch. 426) relating to labor on county roads maintained by equal contributions by the State and the locality. A third act (ch. 236) provided for the gradual extinction of contracts for the labor of convicts, to be completed by December 1, 1918. This act also amends the law as to the employment of convicts on highways. A fourth act (ch. 301) directs that all convicts who are physically able shall work 10 hours per day for 6 days of the week, holidays excepted, for which they shall receive 10 cents daily. Camps in which convicts are housed must be supervised by the State board of health.

The Federal Government took action in this field (No. 194) by authorizing the Attorney General to establish and equip at the United States Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., a factory or factories for the manufacture of cotton fabrics for the use of the War and Navy Departments, and of the Shipping Corporation, and for the manufacture of mail sacks; he may also buy farm lands, and improve and cultivate the same. All products of such convict labor are to be sold only to the United States.

COMMISSIONS ON HOUSING.

The purpose of facilitating war production is manifest in the act of the Federal Congress (No. 149) which authorizes the President to purchase, lease, construct, or acquire by condemnation or by gift, houses, furnishings, and equipment for employees engaged in industries essential to the national defense and their families. The Louisiana Legislature at its extra session provided for a commission on the housing of wage earners, which should act with the United States Secretary of Labor to procure the erection of wage earners' buildings in the State (No. 13).

The homestead commission of Massachusetts was authorized (ch. 204) to allow the placing of mortgages on property controlled by it as a part of the purchase price to be paid by workmen dealing with it.

Employers' register.

Every employer shall keep a register of the names of the women and minors employed by him in any occupation in the District of Columbia, of the hours worked by each, and of all payments made to each, whether paid by the time or by the piece, and shall, on request, permit any member or authorized representative of the board to examine such register.

Commissioners to aid.

To assist the board in carrying out this act the commissioners shall at all times give it any information or statistics in their possession under the act of Congress approved February twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, entitled "An act to regulate the hours of employment and safeguard the health of females employed in the District of Columbia." (Public, numbered sixty, Sixty-third Congress [38 Stat. 291].)

Wage standards.

SEC. 9. The board is hereby authorized and empowered to ascertain and declare, in the manner hereinafter provided, the following things; (a) Standards of minimum wages for women in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living to any such women workers to maintain them in good health and to protect their morals; and (b) standards of minimum wages for minors in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are unreasonably low for any such minor workers.

Conference.

SEC. 10. If, after investigation, the board is of opinion that any substantial number of women workers in any occupation are receiving wages inadequate to supply them with the necessary cost of living and maintain them in health and protect their morals, it may call and convene a conference for the purpose and with the powers of considering and inquiring into and reporting on the subject investigated by the board and submitted by it to such conference. The conference shall be composed of not more than three representatives of the employers in such occupation, of an equal number of representatives of the employees in such occupation, of not more

In its recommendations on a question of wages the conference (1) shall, where it appears that any substantial number of women workers in the occupation under inquiry are being paid by piece rates as distinguished from time rate, recommend minimum piece rates as well as minimum time rate and recommend such minimum piece rates as will, in its judgment, be adequate to supply the necessary cost of living to women workers in such occupation of average ordinary ability and to maintain them in health and protect their morals; and (2) shall, when it appears proper or necessary, recommend suitable minimum wages for learners and apprentices in such occupation and the maximum length of time any woman worker may be kept at such wages as a learner or apprentice, which wages shall be less than the regular minimum wages recommended for the regular women workers in such occupation.

SEC. 12. Upon receipt of any report from any conference, the board shall consider and review the recommendations, and may <sup>Action by</sup> approve or disapprove any or all of such recommendations, and <sup>board.</sup> may resubmit to the same conference, or a new conference, any subject covered by any recommendations so disapproved.

If the board approves any recommendations contained in any report from any conference, it shall publish a notice, once a week, for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia, that it will, on a date and at a place named in the notice, hold a public hearing at which all persons in favor of or opposed to such recommendations will be heard.

After such hearing the board may, in its discretion, make and render such an order as may be proper or necessary to adopt such recommendations and carry them into effect, requiring all employers in the occupation affected thereby to observe and comply with such order. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made. After such order becomes effective, and while it is effective, it shall be unlawful for any employer to violate or disregard any of its terms or provisions, or to employ any woman worker in any occupation covered by such order at lower wages than are authorized or permitted therein.

The board shall, as far as is practicable, mail a copy of such order to every employer affected thereby; and every employer affected by any such order shall keep a copy thereof posted in a conspicuous place in each room in his establishment in which women workers are employed.

SEC. 13. For any occupation in which only a minimum time-rate wage has been established, the board may issue to a woman whose earning capacity has been impaired by age or otherwise, a special license authorizing her employment at such wage less than such minimum time-rate wage as shall be fixed by the board and stated in the license. <sup>Substandard workers</sup>

- Wages of minors. Sec. 14. The board may at any time inquire into wages of minors employed in any occupation in the District of Columbia, and determine suitable wages for them. When the board has made such determination it may make such an order as may be proper or necessary to carry such determination into effect. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made; and after such order becomes effective and while it is effective it shall be unlawful for any employer in such occupation to employ a minor at less wages than are specified or required in or by such order.
- Separate inquiries. Sec. 15. Any conference may make a separate inquiry into and report on any branch of any occupation, and the board may make a separate order affecting any branch of any occupation.

- Acts of agents. Sec. 20. Any act which, if done or omitted to be done by any agent or officer or director acting for such employer, would constitute a violation of this act, shall also be held to be a violation by the employer and subject such employer to the liability provided for by this act.
- Prosecutions. Sec. 21. Prosecutions for violations of this act shall be on information filed in the police court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel.
- Recovery of balances. Sec. 22. If any woman worker is paid by her employer less than the minimum wage to which she is entitled under or by virtue of an order of the board, she may recover in a civil action the full amount of such minimum wage, less any amount actually paid to her by the employer, together with such reasonable attorney's fees as may be allowed by the court; and any agreement for her to work for less than such minimum wage shall be no defense to such action.
- Purpose of act. Sec. 23. This act shall be known as the "District of Columbia minimum-wage law." The purposes of the act are to protect the women and minors of the District from conditions detrimental to their health and morals, resulting from wages which are inadequate to maintain decent standards of living; and the act in each of its provisions and in its entirety shall be interpreted to effectuate these purposes.

Change of name.
Inspector.

Said chief inspector of mines shall have a practical knowledge of the different systems of working and ventilating coal mines and of the nature, chemistry, and properties of noxious and poisonous gases of the mines, especially of explosive gases; also of the dangers due to such gases and their prevention, and of the dangers incident to blasting and their prevention; also of methods for the prevention of explosions in mines due to gas or dust; also of methods for the management and extinguishing of mine fires, and of methods of rescue and relief work in coal-mine disasters; also of the application of electricity in mining operation; and he shall also have a practical knowledge of mining engineering.

Assistant inspectors.

Sec. 3. Whereas the number of coal mines in Kentucky now exceeds seven hundred, having more than doubled within the last two years, and is still rapidly increasing, rendering it physically impossible for the present inspection force of the State department of mines to inspect all the mines as often as proper care for the safety and health of the persons employed therein requires or the law sets forth, the governor of this Commonwealth is hereby authorized and directed to appoint three additional assistant inspectors of mines, who shall hold office for four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The appointment of these, as well as the appointment of all assistant inspectors shall be made by the governor, and each such inspector herein appointed and those hereafter appointed shall hold office for four years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Said assistant inspectors, before entering upon the discharge of their official duties, shall be sworn to discharge those duties faithfully and impartially and to the best of their skill and ability, which oath shall be certified by the officer administering it, and said certificate shall be filed with the secretary of state in his office, and each of said assistants shall give bond in the penal sum of $2,000, with surety to be approved by the governor, for the faithful discharge of his official duties. Each of said assistants shall give his entire time and attention to the duties of his office, which shall consist of the inspection of coal mines, and of aiding, under the direction of the chief inspector of mines, in carrying out and enforcing the provisions of the laws relating to the inspection of such mines; also of training crews of miners, at the mines within their respective districts, in "mine-rescue" methods and in methods of dealing with mine fires; also, of taking charge of mine-rescue and recovery work when mine explosions or mine fires occur within their respective districts, in the event the chief inspector should not be present; also to assist in such work in other districts when so directed by the chief inspector; also to reopen mines or portions of mines that have been sealed on the account of the presence of fire, when called upon by the owner or operator so to do; and to perform such other duties as are set forth in the mining laws.

Salary.

Each assistant inspector shall receive an annual salary of $1,800, payable monthly, and shall likewise be allowed and paid his necessary traveling and other expenses incurred on account of and when engaged in the discharge of his official duties.

Sec. 4. The chief inspector of mines is hereby authorized and directed to partition the coal fields of the State into divisions which shall be known as mine rescue divisions, of which there shall be not to exceed two in the western coal field and not to exceed three in the eastern coal field. In each division there shall be a station, the location of which shall be determined by the chief inspector of mines subject to approval by the governor, at which station shall be kept apparatus, appliances, and supplies for use in the work of rescue and relief upon the occurrence of explosions or mine fires, and for the training of miners in such work. Divisions of State.
Rescue stations.

The chief inspector of mines is hereby directed to provide each station, as it shall be located, and himself with such apparatus, appliances and supplies as may be necessary and he shall designate one of his assistant inspector of mines to have charge of each station.

For the purchase of such rescue apparatus and appliance, there is hereby appropriated a sum not to exceed $4,500. The supplies of oxygen and of necessary chemical for the apparatus shall be purchased by the chief inspector of mines as need from time to time and paid for as other expenses are paid, on the order of said chief inspector approved by the governor; and so shall the cost of any repairs that may become necessary from time to time be paid.

CHAPTER 36.—Assignment of wages.

[This act amends section 2 of chapter 120, Acts of 1912 (sec. 4758a, Ky. Stat.), by striking out the proviso making assignments valid if a copy is furnished the employer within three days, without his assent in writing, thus requiring his assent in all cases.] Assent of employer.

CHAPTER 52.—Employers' liability—Railroad companies.

SECTION. 1. Every common carrier by railroad while engaged in commerce in this State shall be liable in damages to any person suffering injury while he is employed by such carrier in such commerce, or in case of death of such employee, his or her personal representative for such injury or death to such employee resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the officers, agents, or employees of such carrier, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, docks, boats, wharves or other equipment. Contributory negligence.

Sec. 3. In any action brought against any common carrier by railroad under or by virtue of any of the provisions of this act to recover damages for injuries to, or the death of, any employee, such employee shall not be held to have assumed the risk of his employment in any case where the violation by such common carrier of any statute, State or Federal, enacted for the safety of employees contributed to the injury or death of such employee. Assumption of risk.

- Assistance. SEC. 9. The commissioner of labor is authorized to appoint or employ, subject to the civil-service provisions now in force, such employees as may be necessary, and to use such agencies as may be available and appropriate, to aid him in carrying out the provisions of this act.
- Persons ex-empt. SEC. 10. The provisions of this act shall not apply to persons temporarily unemployed by reason of differences with their employers, nor to bona fide students during the school term, nor to persons fitting themselves to engage in trade or industrial pursuits.
- Residents. SEC. 11. For the purposes of this act, any male person as aforesaid found in this State shall be deemed a resident, and in any prosecution hereunder proof that the accused habitually loiters in idleness in streets, roads, depots, pool rooms, saloons, hotels, stores or other places shall be prima facie evidence of the failure or refusal of such person to comply with the provisions of this act.

Approved February 15, 1918.

- Principles to control. [In accordance with the above a proclamation was issued by the governor March 8, 1918, reading in part as follows:]
- The selective-service principle should prevail precisely as in the making of our military forces. In this task we are drafting for the industrial army. There are kinds of work too severe in a physical sense for the "society idler," who may, however, be competent to handle tasks which would be impossible for slackers of the hobo type. Sound judgment must be employed in our experiment to rid the human hives of its drones, and I call upon the labor department of the State to employ all of its available resources, including the Federal-State-municipal employment bureaus, in providing machinery to obtain the kind of work suitable for specific cases.

To put in motion the machinery thus to be provided by the State department of labor will require the cooperative touch of law-enforcing officers all over the State. I therefore call the attention of sheriffs, mayors, and heads of police departments in all municipalities to the necessity of maintaining sharp vigilance and a keen eye for those workless individuals whose lack of ambition and fondness for idleness constitutes not merely a financial burden to every community, but also a genuine menace to the welfare of the nation's manhood under arms and their safety on the battle front.

Enforcement.

Executives of municipalities of ten thousand population and over are urged to have their police departments compile a list of all habitual idlers in the community, to the end that they may be individually warned of the penalty of one hundred dollars or three months in jail, or both, prescribed for deliberate nonemployment, and that the names of those professing willingness to work may be promptly certified to the State labor department, as available for employment.

Section 15 is amended so as to read as follows:]

(b) An application for such license shall be made in writing to the commissioner of labor and shall state the name and number of the building and place where the employment agency is to be conducted. The application for such license shall be filed not less than one week prior to the granting of said license, and the commissioner of labor shall act upon such application within thirty days from the time of such application.

In case of a breach of the condition of any such bond, application may be made to the commissioner of labor by the person injured by such breach for leave to sue upon such bond, which leave shall be granted by the commissioner of labor if it be proven to his satisfaction that the condition of such bond has been breached and the party applying has been injured thereby. The person obtaining such leave to sue may take the bond from the files of the said commissioner and institute suit thereon in his own name for the recovery of damage sustained by such breach.

3. If at any time, in the opinion of the commissioner of labor, the sureties on any such bond, or any of them, shall become irresponsible, the person holding such license shall, upon notice from the commissioner of labor, give a new bond, subject to the provisions of this section. Scope of act.

Any such proclamation shall be filed with the secretary of state and published at least once in each county, in a newspaper of general circulation therein. The governor may, in like manner, revoke any such proclamation before the termination of such war.
Term.	SEC. 2. From and after the issuance of the proclamation by the governor, as provided in section one, and until the termination of the present war with Germany and its allies or until the prior revocation of such proclamation, every able-bodied male resident of this State, between the ages of eighteen and fifty years, inclusive, shall habitually and regularly engage in some lawful, useful and recognized business, profession, occupation, trade or employment. In addition to its other powers the State industrial commission may assign any person registered with the bureau of employment to any available job or occupation for which such person is fitted. Such commission shall prepare and publish such rules and regulations governing the assignment of persons to work under this act as will assure that all persons similarly circumstanced shall, so far as possible, be treated alike. In assigning anyone to work, such commission shall take into consideration the age, physical condition and any other appropriate circumstances of the person so assigned. Such rules shall have the force of law, and a violation thereof shall be punishable in the same manner as a violation of any other provision of this act.
Wages.	SEC. 5. It shall be the duty of the sheriffs of the respective counties and of any other officer, State or municipal, charged with enforcing the law, to seek and to continue to seek diligently the names and places of residence of able-bodied male persons within their respective jurisdictions, between the ages of eighteen and fifty years, inclusive, not regularly or continuously employed, as provided in this act, while such proclamation is in force.

The term "floor area" means the entire space between fire walls, or between a fire wall and an exterior wall of a building, or between the exterior walls of the building where there is no intervening fire wall. From every floor area there shall be not less than two means of exit remote from each other, one of which on every floor above the ground floor shall be an interior inclosed fireproof stairway or an exterior inclosed fireproof stairway, and the other shall be such a stairway or a horizontal exit. No point in any floor area in an unsprinklered building shall be more than one hundred feet distant from the entrance to one such means of exit, and in a sprinklered building shall be more than one hundred and fifty feet distant from the entrance to one such means of exit. There shall be not more than twelve feet six inches in height between successive landings. The treads shall be not less than ten inches wide exclusive of nosing, and the rise shall be not more than seven and three-fourths inches. All stairways serving as required means of exit shall lead continuously to the street or to a fireproof passageway independent of other means of exit from the building opening on a road or street or to an open area affording unobstructed passage to a road or street: Provided, however, That in buildings more than five stories in height all stairways serving as required means of exit shall extend to the roof. Provision shall be made for the adequate lighting of all stairways by artificial light.

SEC. 3. Subdivision one of section seventy-nine-c of such chapter * * * is hereby amended to read as follows:

Stairways.

1. Stairways shall be provided with proper and substantial hand-rails. Where the stairway is inclosed by fireproof partitions the bottom of the inclosure shall be of fireproof material at least four inches thick unless the fireproof partitions extend to the cellar bottom. The stairway shall in all other respects conform to the requirements of subdivision three of section seventy-nine-a of this chapter. There shall be no opening in any wall separating the exterior inclosed fireproof stairway from the building. Access shall be provided to the stairway from every floor of the building by means of an outside balcony or vestibule of steel, iron or masonry. Every such balcony or vestibule shall have an unobstructed width of at least forty-four inches and shall be provided with a fireproof floor and a railing of incombustible material not less than three feet high. Access to such balconies from the building and to the stairway from the balconies, shall be by means of fire doors. The level of the balcony floor shall be not more than seven inches below the level of the door sill of the building. The doors shall be not less than forty-four inches wide and shall swing outward onto the balcony and inward from the balcony to the stairway, and shall be provided with locks or latches with visible fastenings requiring no key to open them in leaving the building. The landings in such stairway shall be of such width that the doors in opening into the stairway shall not reduce the free passageway of the landings to a width less than the width of the stairs. Every such stairway shall be provided with a proper lighting system which shall furnish adequate light and shall be so arranged as to insure its reliable operation when, through accident or other cause, the regular factory lighting is extinguished. The balconies giving access to such stairways shall be open on at least one side upon an open space not less than one hundred square feet in area.

Sec. 6. Section eighty-three-a of such chapter, as added by chapter three hundred and thirty of the laws of nineteen hundred and twelve * * * is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 83-a. 1. Every factory building over two stories in height in which more than twenty-five persons are employed above the ground floor, shall be equipped with a fire alarm signal system with a sufficient number of signals clearly audible to all occupants thereof, except in buildings in which every square foot of the floor area on all stories is protected with an automatic sprinkler system having two adequate sources of water supply and approved by the public authorities having jurisdiction and in which also the maximum number of occupants on any one floor does not exceed by more than fifty per centum the capacity of the exits as determined by subdivisions one, two and three of section seventy-nine-e in addition to the prescribed occupancy under subdivisions four, five, six and seven of section seventy-nine-e of this chapter: Provided, however, That the commission may, after investigation and when it is determined that the spirit of this chapter is observed and public safety secured, permit in lieu of a fire alarm signal system and fire drills, an automatic sprinkler system having one adequate source of water supply, approved by the public authorities having jurisdiction and in which also the maximum number of occupants on any one floor does not exceed by more than fifty per centum the capacity of the exits as determined by subdivisions one, two and three of section seventy-nine-e, in addition to the prescribed occupancy under subdivisions four, five, six and seven of section seventy-nine-e of this chapter. 3. In the city of New York the fire commissioner of said city, and elsewhere the commission is charged with the duty of enforcing this section.

Sec. 7. Subdivision three of section eighty-three-c, as added by chapter three hundred and twenty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and twelve * * * is hereby amended to read as follows:

Such permit shall bear conspicuously across the face the following words in red ink: "Summer vacation permit good only from July first until August thirty-first inclusive." The summer vacation permit shall differ in size and color from the employment certificate and shall not be granted unless all the provisions of section one hundred and sixty-three, except that relating to the filing of a school record, shall have been complied with. No summer vacation permit shall be granted until the officer issuing employment certificates shall receive, examine and file, in lieu of a school record, a certificate of attendance, which shall contain a statement certifying that the child has regularly attended the public schools or schools equivalent thereto or parochial schools for not less than one hundred and thirty days during the twelve months next preceding his fourteenth birthday, or during the twelve months next preceding his application for such summer vacation permit. The certificate of attendance herein required shall be issued in the same manner as prescribed in section one hundred and sixty-five regulating the issuance of school records.

The officer issuing employment certificates shall not issue a summer vacation permit until he has also received, examined, and filed a statement signed by the prospective employer, or some one duly authorized on his behalf, showing that he expects to give such child present employment and setting forth the character of the work to be required. The summer vacation permit herein described shall be granted to the prospective employer and shall contain, in addition to the contents prescribed for the employment certificate, the name of the employer and the address at which the child is to be employed, and shall be forwarded by mail by the issuing officer to such employer, and shall be valid for the employment of the child named therein by the employer to whom it is granted, and only during the months of July and August.

It shall be the duty of every person to whom a summer vacation permit has been granted to return such permit by mail to the issuing officer as follows:

1. Within three days after its receipt, in case the child for whose employment it was granted is not employed;
2. Within three days after the termination of the employment of the child, if occurring within the permitted period of summer employment;
3. Within three days after August thirty-first, in case such child is employed until the termination of the permit.

Any person, firm or corporation who fails to return the summer vacation permit when required to do so by this section, or who employs a child under sixteen years of age upon a summer vacation permit, except during the months of July and August, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

The issuing officer to whom a summer vacation permit has been returned shall file said permit and preserve it for at least one year. Any child whose summer vacation permit has been returned as above provided and who, after re-examination, is found to be physically fit to perform the work for which the new permit is to be granted, shall be entitled to a new permit upon presentation of a statement from a prospective employer as hereinbefore provided.
